

Pathos of the law

Space law is a tool used to benefit the sector, not a cudgel.

- The greater good of the station is to be considered during sentencing
- Space Law is designed to protect the station and crew, not to hinder them.
- Station-Wide emergencies are to take priority over enforcing Space law.
- Roleplay fun is to take priority over all others.

Brigging Procedures

When a suspect is brought to brig, either cuffed or not, you should contact the Warden/HoS ahead of time, and have either ready to process them as they arrive.

- If they're a suspect they should be brought to a cell or interrogation as soon as possible, with their items stowed in the evidence locker outside their cell.
- You may detain someone for 10 minutes without charges maximum, Time spent detained is to be subtracted from their sentence when charged. There is no double jeopardy for charges.
- If you are planning a longer interrogation, you must do so while their timer is running and you may not keep them longer without authorization from the head of their department.

Permanent confinement

If a timer is longer than 30 minutes, the incarcerated is to be transferred to permanent confinement to spend the rest of their sentence.

Executions

Executions are to be authorized by the current Captain, Acting or non, and announced over the communications console of the charges, Reasoning, Method of execution, and when it was performed, A fax to Colonial Command is to also be sent containing the same.

Implant Search

Security is permitted to perform implant searches on suspects who are suspected, or confirmed to have an illegal implant.

Probable cause for a search includes; Visual confirmation, Visual cues, Witness reports, Concrete evidence.

Crimes that warrant permanent confinement permit security to perform a full body search.

Isolation

Incarcerated individuals who are a threat to themselves, or others are to be put into isolation. Isolation is a cell, away from other crew, with minimal required necessities (Bed, Toilet, etc...).

Prisoner Classification	E-01 In-Cell vandalism	E-02 Attempted Escape	E-03 Escape
Temporary	Reset timer	Reset timer/Isolation (discretionary)	Reset Timer, +10 Minutes
Permanent	Removal of luxuries	Isolation 10 minutes	Re-detained or Executed (discretionary)
Isolation	Straight Jacket	Straightjacket or Execution (discretionary)	Re-Detained or Executed (discretionary)

Warrants
In order to conduct a search upon any individual or vessel in-sector, a search warrant must be issued detailing the scope of the search, the reason it is being conducted, and be signed and stamped by the Warden, Head of Security, or Captain to be legal and valid. ALL warrants must have evidence backing the reason for said warrant being issued. Hearsay is NOT a valid reason for issuing a warrant.
Individual
Refers to a specific individual and the contents of any worn equipment, bags, etc. This warrant is issued when a specific person needs to be searched for a potentially missing article or contraband. This does not extend to any privately owned vessel. NOTE: On Blue or Red alert, the need for an individual search warrant is waived. This does NOT grant security a blanket excuse to search everyone save those exhibiting suspicious behavior.
Ship
Refers to a specific vessel docked to the station or in open space. This type of warrant covers the entirety of said vessel and ANY individual on board at the time the warrant is executed. Suspicion that an individual has taken aboard contraband which was previously witnessed by Security or Command is a valid reason to issue a warrant. NOTE: Only on Red Alert will the need for a Ship Search Warrant be waived for Security to board and search a vessel. This is not a blanket excuse to conduct searches on every vessel in-sector, searches still need to be justifiable to Colonial Command if a reason is requested post-incident.

Department

Refers to a specific section of the station falling under an individual command member's jurisdiction (I.E. Science, Cargo, Service, etc.). This type of warrant covers the entirety of said department and its employees, allowing Security to search both for missing items and contraband. This type of warrant is put under greater scrutiny due to its widespread impact on a department, thus evidence supporting the need for the search MUST be established before it is issued. NOT: Only on Red Alert is the need for a department search warrant waived, this is to ensure needless searches which inhibit a department's operations are not conducted.

Arrest

Refers to the lawful ordering of the detainment of a citizen in Colonial space. Said warrants must include the individual's name, position, charges against the individual, a brief statement of evidence to support the warrant, and a signature from an authorized (see above) individual to be valid. Individuals placed under arrest are subject to a personal, not vessel, search. If a vessel search is required, a separate warrant must be drafted to comply with Space Law. NOTE: On Blue and Red alerts the need for an arrest warrant is waived. Individuals arrested under elevated alerts must be detained with reasonable evidence to support the arrest and justifiable to Colonial Command.

Arrest Procedure

In the event that a Colonial Citizen is being detained, there are certain procedures that Security MUST follow in order to lawfully arrest said person.

1. The Citizen is to be halted using a whistle or hailer to alert them that Security will be speaking with them. (If said individual does not halt security is permitted to use non-lethal means to subdue said person.)
2. The arrest warrant (If on green alert) is to be produced and the officer shall verbally announce that the individual is being detained. The crime the individual is being detained for must be announced.
3. If the individual is armed the officer is to request that they remove and place all equipment on the ground. Failure to comply permits the officer to use non-lethal force to detain the individual. (If the individual is heavily armed, see use of deadly force for situations where lethal force may be applied.)
4. The individual is to be ordered away from their equipment and to lay on the ground or face a wall. The officer may then approach to cuff the individual.
5. The detainee's equipment is to be collected and transported with them to Security and handed to the Warden for processing.

Note: If the detainee becomes belligerent, properly wields a long arm (Rifle, shotgun, anything requiring two hands), draws a side arm (Pistol, etc), or attempts to flee the arresting officer may employ NON-LETHAL or LETHAL force depending on the situation as outlined by Use Of Deadly Force. See the relevant section for information.

Radio Call-Ins

A call for help on a radio does not immediately mark the called out suspect for arrest. Proper investigation is still required to establish evidence for an arrest. Suspects may be brought in for interrogation if they willingly comply, otherwise an arrest warrant is required.

Officer Witness

If a Security Officer or member of Command directly witnesses a crime take place, the need for an arrest warrant is waived.

Fleeing to a ship

If a suspect marked for arrest via a warrant flees onto a private vessel, that vessel becomes subject to immediate search and seizure of all contraband held within.
NOTE: Crew are NOT subject to search unless they willingly impede officers or aid the individual being arrested.

Red Alert Equipment Protocol

Upon entering Red Alert, the following is authorized by Colonial Command concerning restricted equipment being employed on station.

1. Security Staff may freely utilize C3 equipment to handle any given threat on station. (NOTE: Security is allowed to have and employ C3, within reason, on lower alert levels. This simply removes all restrictions for 'within reason' to allow free use.)
2. Freelancers and crew may brandish and employ C3 equipment strictly to combat the threat to the station. Any freelancer engaging in aiding the station MUST report to Security and listen to orders given by the Head of Security or Captain.
3. Upon removal of the threat, an announcement is to be made stating individuals with illegal equipment must stow said equipment off-station. NO ONE MAY BE PURSUED FOR EQUIPMENT USED DURING A RED ALERT. A grace period of 5 minutes is to be given from the time of announcement and lowering of alert, in which time any witnessed equipment may not be pursued. After the 5-minute grace period, any remaining contraband may be confiscated as spotted.
